NEWSLETTER SEPTEMBER / OCTOBER 2011

WHAT'S ON

Oxford Open Doors at St Frideswide's

This is arranged by The Oxford Preservation Trust and allows people access to places and things of interest that are not always open. St Frideswide will be open for people to:

- See the church itself
- See the 'Alice' door
- Hear the newly restored Hunter organ played.

Local historian Julian Munby will be offering guided tours and answering questions about the church, its history and its association with the Alice stories. St Margaret's Binsey will also be open. Morning coffee and cake will be served 10 ~ 11.30 am and Afternoon tea 3 ~ 4.30pm. There will be jams, jellies, pickles and lavender bags on sale.

Organ recitals

Thursday September 29th. Our series of organ recitals on our newly restored Hunter Organ continues at St Frideswide's. They start at 7:30, and wine and refreshments will be available. A £5 donation is payable at the door.

Family Yoga

Saturday 5th November @11am, East Street's Annabel Dunstan will be holding a one off 'family yoga' session suitable for children, parents and grandparents aged 3-103 year olds. All profits raised will go to the Alzheimer's Society to support their vital work 'leading the fight against dementia'. This is a cause close to Annabel's heart as both her parents are living with dementia.

ISLAND NEWS

A BIT OF LOCAL HISTORY

Lord Nuffield: engineer and philanthropist

From Roy Hoare: In the 1940s, as a young airman surviving on the princely wage of 28 shillings a week, I was grateful for the generosity of Lord Nuffield which made it possible for servicemen and women to rest and enjoy a good meal at low cost at the Nuffield Centre in London. There was dancing and live entertainment - I saw Arthur Askey on one of my visits. Free tickets to West End theatre were usually available and made possible my first experience of live theatre seeing Flora Robson starring in Black Chiffon. Lord Nuffield's Trust also enabled members of H.M. forces to take part in adventure sports: I led survival and trekking trips to the Highlands of Scotland at his expense!

In the late 1940s, Lord Nuffield funded The Nuffield Post Graduate College in Castle Street. His aim was to enhance the scientific and engineering departments of the University. However, the University Chancellors persuaded him that a social sciences faculty 'would be more suitable to the University's needs'.

A massive epidemic of polio in Australia in 1937 resulted in an acute shortage of 'iron lungs', the artificial respirators for those unable to breathe unaided. Lord Nuffield, in collaboration with Dr. Edward Both, an Australian, devised a lighter mobile version of the lung. 1,800 were manufactured at the Cowley works in Oxford and distributed 'gratis' throughout the Empire. They were both lauded in Australia for their contribution to medicine and the relief of suffering.

After a lifetime of partaking in physical activities, my left hip began to show signs of wear. I was fortunate to be admitted to the Nuffield Orthopaedic Hospital, where I received a replacement hip, outstanding treatment and care and a new mobility. Many hundreds of thousands of ordinary people have been recipients of his legacy: William Morris, a modest man in many ways, whose name is now part of the fabric of Oxford City.

A BIT OF NATURAL HISTORY

A swift departure

Now that summer has passed and the great exodus of avian summer visitors is well underway, I could not but notice the absence in the skies over Osney of the anticipated crowd of swifts gathering overhead for their departure south. These gatherings are a time for the young birds to exercise their fledgling wings and feed up for the long journey ahead – but this year no sign of them!

Their noisy squadrons are particularly apparent in late July/early August as groups of birds soar and dive between buildings and over rooftops on wings resembling black boomerangs. Their kamikaze-like displays as they race towards the face of houses only to bank away a split second before impact is quite amazing to watch. These aerial manoeuvres accompanied by an almost incessant medley of shrill screams makes for a pleasant distraction on a warm summer's evening while sitting with a large glass of wine to hand.

It's a curious fact, and one that never ceases to amaze me, that apart from the necessities of breeding, these delightful birds live their entire lives in flight, feeding on airborne insects and sleeping on the wing.

The reduced number of swifts (a subjective opinion) this year in West Oxford may be down to fewer nest sites available as more and more older properties are upgraded or 'improved'. Or it may be merely a cyclic downturn with numbers increasing again a few years later. I recorded the first birds over Osney on May 3rd involving just three individuals. At no time during the following weeks did I see more than 8-10 together at any given time.

Whatever the reason for the apparent decrease (and it may be very local) there is no doubt that their superb aerial capabilities, so evident when they first arrive and are fully engaged in nuptial showing off, followed six weeks or so later when their numbers are swollen by hordes of youngsters swarming like bees, defy being ignored. For me, their arrival in spring in very early May up until their late summer gatherings epitomise the very essence of summer. But this year was disappointing as they uncharacteristically slipped quietly away almost unnoticed. Now it will be another nine months before they grace our skies again.

I work with a lot of cat lovers who still live at home/shared houses and who would love to move in while someone is away and stroke the cat. Please get in touch with me at 90 Bridge St m 07989 346777 if you'd like a cat/house sitter.

Jam jar bank

Stolen goods

Bernice McDonnell of South St reports that she has had more stuff stolen, this time another bike (locked), a plant pot (with its plant) and a brand new wicker bike basket (firmly fixed to the bike – it must have been cut off).

An Island in Oxford

A few copies of the Millennium booklet An Island in Oxford (58 pages, with illustrations!) have emerged. If anyone would like to buy one (£3), please call Fiona or Stephen on 201334 (11 South Street) with name and phone number. There is usually high demand when these emerge from cupboards and attics so we will take names and draw a lottery if necessary a couple of weeks after the issue of this Newsletter to give everyone a fairer chance. The money goes to the Osney Society and these funds could go towards the cost of an updated booklet. If anyone is interested in running a project to write a new booklet, please also say. Finally, if there are any more spare or unwanted copies of the booklet out there, it would be good to recycle those too so let us have them!

Congratluations ...

To Richard and Vicki Thurston on the birth of Grace Poppy, a sister for Eve.
