www.osneyisland.co.uk
November—December 2015

HAPPY CHRISTMAS EVERYONE!

In the last newsletter we removed the Directory to separate list on the website. Feedback revealed this was that this was not a popular move! People want hardcopy apparently, so it has been reinstated together with Susanna's bits as an insert

COMING UP

Children's lantern parade

This year's traditional Osney Island Christmas carol singing and children's lantern parade will be on Saturday 5th December. Meet outside The Punter at 5pm and bring a lantern (or a tea light in a jam jar) if possible. If you would like the carol singers to stop by your house and sing, please contact Debbie Hall (debbietheduck@hotmail.com, 07779 295080) or let us know at 14 East Street. If you would like to offer refreshments to the carol singers en route then please let Debbie know as well. Everyone is welcome

ISLAND NEWS

Residents email list

From Robert Lawrence: We are planning to introduce a new residents email list in December. As well as receiving emails of interest to Islanders, you will be able to read and respond to discussion topics via a weblink. As before, the list will be moderated. There is documentation online should you need it. All those subscribed to the current service will be invited to join the new one before it goes live. Anyone not currently subscribed and wishing to be added to the list should send an email to osneyislandresidents@gmail.com.

Allotment news

The Committee have been working hard to align plots to plot holders – which is proving to be a massive job and bit of a nightmare not least because few of the plots are actually numbered. Several new plots have been assigned but there are still several people on the waiting list. Plot holders who haven't paid have been sent a letter noting that the cut off point was Sunday November 15 after which their plot reverted back to the committee for reallocation. And if your plot is not numbered please please number it NOW.

LOCAL HISTORY

Growing up in Osney

Chapter 3 of an on-going contribution from John Gaisford.

The big freeze in 1947 still comes clearly to mind when I had to push an old pram round to the old gasworks to join the queue to get coke for the fire as there was a coal shortage then. My father William worked in the Morris paint shop at Cowley where he would try and make a few bob dipping tobacco tins in the black paint and them embossing them with the Morris badge. I should have been a hairdresser if the family trend was to continue for my four brothers all trained as hairdressers in the shop owned by Cecil Smith opposite Warlands Cycles at the top of Alexandra Road. My dad said that people will always want their hair cut but I couldn't be tempted in 1951, even at 16 shillings a week! My brother Maurice opened a shop on Elms Parade in the 50s and most of the family - Dennis, Mutch, Keith and even me - sweeping up to do our bit for the family name. Brother Mutch played for the Osney Town football team that won the Oxford Junior League. As a baby, I recall seeing the lemonade factory blaze on the other side of East Street from the window at the back of no 26. East Street was to become a scene of some of the he happiest and scariest moments for the Osney youngsters. More of that in Part 4.

IN FOCUS

Following in the footsteps of the excellent West Oxford Academy, this column focusses on Islanders' particular interests.

Cycling in France

From Robert Lawrence: Anyone who knows me will appreciate I love the bike and cycle touring - saddlebag, maps, phone and credit card – and so mid-September saw me set out to ride from Nice to Saint-Malo, a French end-to-end. A flight from Gatwick, and off down the Promenade des Anglais and north-west into the Alpes-Maritimes département. A wonderful ride into Provence and Gard via the Gorges du Verdon and Nesque, dizzying precipitous views down to limestone, scrub, and river. En route sleepy hilltop villages, crumbling stucco, terracotta tiles, and pastel colours, all blessed by a warm southern sun. The highlight hereabouts was an ascent of Mont Ventoux, Géant de Provence, and a homage to Tom Simpson who died there in the 1967 Tour de France. Next day brought a battering from Le Mistral, a crossing of the Rhone, and the Gorges de l'Ardèche and Tarn. Then up and over the Cévennes to Rodez and Figeac, before heading into the Dordogne and a brief rest. North of the Loire saw a dour contrast in bricks and grey slates, flat roads, countless heavy lorries and rain. Then more rain. Finally, after fifteen days on the road and a thousand miles, Saint-Malo, ferry, and home ... and already, thoughts of where next year?

THE DIRECTORY

The following list is compiled from Islanders recommendations only. No one pays for an entry and suppliers are removed if there are reports of unreasonable rates or service. Before recommending that someone is removed, sort the issue out between you and the supplier first – someone's livelihood is at stake.
Make sure you use the most up to date list!
